

THE CHRISTMAS TREE

WYBC operates three radio stations out of three control rooms. The program lines from control rooms I, II, & III all have terminations on the patchboard in CR II, as do the lines to Ray, Nora, and Payne Whitney. Therefore it is possible to use any control room as a program source for any station through the use of the patchcords.

Patchcord switching, however, is not efficient enough for everyday operations. Therefore there is a switching matrix in CR II, known as the Christmas Tree, which controls the program sources for our two AM stations. Note that FM does not appear on the Christmas Tree; this is because the bulk of our FM programming originates in CR II anyway.

To execute a station switch using the Christmas Tree, one first selects the program sources for the respective stations by pushing the proper buttons. The buttons, and the analogous station status lights in the other control rooms and studios, will then start flashing red. This indicates the nature of the upcoming switch. When EXECUTE button is pushed, the program sources are switched cleanly (there is no click on the air) and the flashing lights turn green.

An example may serve to make this more clear. At 11:00 the news (Retrospect) is simulcast from CR II. Prior to this 640 is coming from CR I. So, a few moments before 11:00, the "640-CR II" button is pushed, and it starts flashing red, along with the 640 light in Studio II. The 640 light in CR I, which has been green, will start flashing green at this time. At EXACTLY 11:00, the EXECUTE button is pushed, and the news cartridge is started. It is imperative that the EXECUTE button is pushed ~~is pushed~~ exactly on the hour, since CR I will supply program all the way up to that time. Once the switch has been executed, the "640-CR II" button on the Christmas Tree, and the 640 light in Studio II will be green. The 640 light in CR I will be off.

In short, the Christmas Tree is the switching device for 640 and 540. A green station status light in any CR or Studio indicates a station has been switched there. Flashing green indicates the station is about to be switched away, flashing red indicates it is about to be switched in.

THE CHRISTMAS TREE

When operation three radio stations and of three control rooms. Batched switching, however, is not sufficient enough for everyday operations. Therefore there is a switching matrix in CR II, known as the Christmas Tree, which controls the program sources for our two AM stations. When CR II does not appear on the Christmas Tree, this is because the bulk of our FM programming originates in CR II anyway.

To examine a station switching the Christmas Tree, one first selects the program sources for the respective stations by means of the program buttons. The buttons, and the stations, are listed in the other control rooms and studios. When a station is selected, this indicates the source of the program. When EXHIBIT button is pushed, the program sources are switched externally (there is no effect on the air) and the flashing lights turn green.

An example may have to make this more clear. At 11:00 the news (Batched) is transmitted from CR II. Prior to this time CR I is coming from CR I. So, a few moments before 11:00, the "11:00-11:15" button is pushed, and it starts flashing red, along with the 11:00 light in CR I. The 11:00 light in CR I, which has been green, will start flashing green at this time. At 11:00:00, the EXHIBIT button is pushed, and the news program is started. At a later time, the EXHIBIT button is pushed again, exactly on the hour, since CR I will switch program all the way up to that time. Once the switch has been executed, the "11:00-11:15" button on the Christmas Tree, and the 11:00 light in CR I will be green. The 11:00 light in CR I will be off.

In short, the Christmas Tree is the switching device for CR I and CR II. A green station status light in CR I or CR II indicates a station has been switched from. Flashing green indicates the station is about to be switched away, flashing red indicates it is about to be switched in.
